

What is a Reserve?

Last Modified on 18/08/2016 2:46 pm AEST

On all auction listings you are able to list a reserve, which is a hidden minimum price on their item. This amount is the minimum price the seller is willing to accept for the item.

The bidders will be able to see from the category item listing and within the item page whether or not the reserve has been met. If the reserve is not met, the item is passed in. To win the item you must meet or exceed the reserve price and have the highest bid.

Related Articles

[template("related")]
